

ELIF'S CORNER

Elif Karol

Hi everyone! I hope that this edition of Dergi Merhaba reaches you and your family in good health and high spirits.

This past month has been a horrendous one in the United States. It still gives us goose bumps to think that something as tragic as what happened in New York and Washington can and did happen on our continent. Most of us have been raised to believe that we are safe where we are geographically. To see that belief system be shaken is unsettling to say the least.

We've all seen the tragedy on television, and in the newspapers. Frankly, if you're old enough to be reading this article right now, it's a sight that will never be erased from your memory. In the wake of that week's occurrence, I wanted to help us to remember little things that we, as human beings seem to forget every now and then. A personal motto of mine is to "treat people the way that I want to be treated". These ten words can have such a tremendous impact on our lives, if we would simply follow them. Whether it's a miniscule thing that takes place in our daily lives, or a massive episode, if we could just remember to implement the 'ten little words' into our problem solving tactics, the world would be a much happier place to live in.

Don't get me wrong; the world is not necessarily a rotten place. Since the occurrence in the States, we've seen many humanitarian acts. Thousands of people are trying to help out in any way they can. Amidst such a unbearable act by 'humans', (if they can even be called that) we are witnessing many citizens coming out and lending a hand whether that hand is literal, or figurative, it is still apparent. It's reassuring to know that humanity is not dead in our world. Wild, heartless beasts still exist unfortunately, but I truly believe that goodness will prevail. I hope that as you're reading this, you're thinking of ways to start 'treating people the way you want to be treated'. It's such a simple concept, yet a miraculous outcome awaits if it's followed through. My thoughts and prayers are with those involved in our neighbours' tragedy. As a continent, and as a human race, let's look forward and focus on prevalence. As always, if you have any thoughts or comments, you can reach me at elif_karol@hotmail.com. Peace out!
